

Apr 30, 2019, 09:14am

What's Brewing In The Hamptons? A Roundup Of New Openings

Sylvie Bigar Contributor

ForbesLife

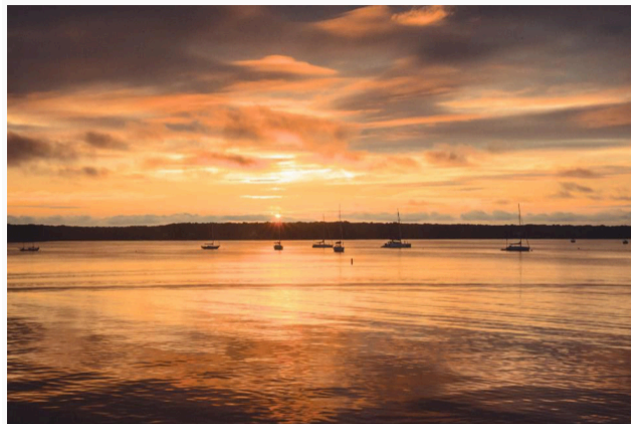

I tell stories: gastronomy, culinary traditions, drink, travel.

In the Hamptons, the cherry tree blossoms are about to burst, and the swallows are back. Traffic has picked up; the first asparagus emerge from the soil and chefs are busy testing new recipes. Along Route 27, the air pulses with the sound of construction and renovation—the 2019 Season is around the corner. Here are a few notable openings:

Beach path on Long Island in "The Hamptons" with sign for No Lifeguard on Duty. Sunset colors and scene. GETTY

Bostwick's the Return: Those of you who remember the epic sunsets on the water and lining up for a table at Bostwick's on Three Mile Harbor can round up their party already. Owners Kevin Boles and Chris Eggert have snatched their old location back. The upscale eatery will be called Bostwick's on the Harbor and is planning garlicky mussels, steamers and tuna crudo as well as the rebirth of the famous seafood pasta with lobster, shrimp and scallops in a tomato cream sauce. The more casual Bostwick's Chowder House in East Hampton remains open.

Sailboats anchored off the shore of Three Mile Harbor, East Hampton, during a surreal summer sunset. GETTY